CONDITIONAL USE PROCESS

What is a Conditional Use?

The Planning and Zoning Commission reviews applications for certain types of proposed land uses at their monthly scheduled meetings. These uses are called “conditional uses.” Such uses may not be appropriate generally or without certain restrictions or conditions that ensure compatibility with surrounding existing land uses. The Planning and Zoning Commission may establish conditions of approval such as: maximum floor area, hours of operation, permitted activities, building elevation designs, location of parking, need for fencing, and other elements which may be appropriate to ensure compatibility with adjacent land uses.

What is the reply form?

As part of the Conditional Use Process, notification letters and reply forms are sent to property owners who own property within 200 feet of the proposed location. Property owners may send in their reply forms marked “In Favor”, “Opposed” or “Undecided”. The Planning and Zoning Commission seeks to provide a balance between the desire of the applicant to establish a conditional use and the concerns of the neighbors. The reply forms give the Planning and Zoning Commission the opportunity to review the feelings of surrounding property owners. The Planning and Zoning Commission is under no obligation to deny or approve a conditional use based solely on public responses. Therefore, it is important for affected neighbors to state any specific concerns in the comments section of the reply form.

Can I attend the Planning and Zoning Commission Meeting?

Yes. All citizens that have an interest in the proposed project are encouraged to attend the public hearing.

How long is a Conditional Use Permit good for?

If approved, a Conditional Use Permit is valid for one year. The applicant has one year to obtain a building permit and commence construction of the project. The Applicant is not required to renew the Conditional Use Permit once the project is complete.

Can the Planning and Zoning Commission’s decision be appealed?

Yes. A decision of the Planning and Zoning Commission may be appealed to the City Council. An appeal application must be filed with the Planning Division within ten (10) days of the Planning and Zoning Commission’s decision. There is a $100.00 fee to appeal to the City Council.
